REIMBURSEMENT INFORMATION

Eligible participants attending the SAMEU conference in Frankfurt, Germany, who are interested in applying for reimbursement towards tuition fees on continuing education, professional development or review courses, please see below for details on obtaining additional information from your related service.

Veterans Administration

Active military, veterans, eligible spouses and dependents may now use their G.I. Bill education benefits to pay for the cost of approved licensing and certification exams. Those eligible may apply to the Veterans Affairs Office for reimbursement of CFM exam fees. For more information about your V.A. benefits, visit www.gibill.va.gov.

USACE

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers promotes and encourages all their employees to obtain professional credentials/ training and will reimburse those civilian employees interested in licensure, registration or certifications. Generally, the Corps will pay for only one registration, license or certification that is most closely related to an employee's duties. However, management may authorize payment for more than one registration, license and/ or certification if justified by mission requirements. Upon successfully attaining your credentials and receiving written approval from the appropriate official, you may submit your expenses for reimbursement. For more information on reimbursements related to USACE, please click on the link to obtain full details on reimbursement.

USAF

In accordance with HQ USAF DP memo, the CFM and CCM is an approved "Professional Credentials Credit" and employees may request reimbursement of all expenses. For more information on reimbursements related to USAF, please click on the link to obtain full details on reimbursement.
