October Post Meeting - Rough River Dam Stabilization Project

SAME Kentuckiana Post was pleased to welcome guests from the Kentucky Society of Professional Engineers to the joint SAME/KSPE October Post Meeting. More than 60 attendees were on hand for the Rough River Dam Stabilization Project luncheon presentation.

Rough River Dam is located in West-Central Kentucky and was designed and constructed in the 1950s. The project is currently undergoing a drilling and grouting program in advance of the design and installation of a full-depth cutoff wall. The condition of the dam during drilling and grouting is monitored via real-time instrumentation monitoring using an Automated Data Acquisition System (ADAS) that has been designed, installed, and operated by the USACE Louisville District and USGS.

Will Ailstock, PE, of the USACE Louisville District Geotechnical and Dam Safety Section, was on hand to discuss the construction and performance history leading up to Phase 1 construction, provide an update of the current construction progress, and present preliminary design elements for the Phase 2 cutoff wall. For the past three years, Will has served as the Lead Engineer on the Rough River Major Rehabilitation project, which is one of the “Mega-Projects” within the USACE - Great Lakes and Ohio River Division.

Will Ailstock, PE, USACE, Louisville District, Geotechnical and Dam Safety Section provided an update on the Rough River Dam Stabilization Project to a packed house at the October Joint SAME/KSPE Luncheon.
November Post Meeting - Military Airfield Design/Build Projects

Matt Kundrot, PE, CH2M’s Federal Program Director – Aviation, provided an informative presentation on airfield design and construction to more than 50 members and guests at the SAME Kentuckiana November Post Meeting. Matt’s presentation covered a variety of design elements including civil design, electrical design, navigational aids, airspace and ground obstruction analysis, and operational phasing techniques. Attendees left the meeting with a good understanding of:

- Basic operational and design requirements of civil and military airfields.
- Unique issues involved in airfield civil and electrical design and construction.
- Potentially serious consequences of airfield construction-related mishaps and how to avoid them.
- Requirements for specialized airfield pavement and electrical design in all manners of project execution.
- Lessons learned from design/build airfield projects.
- Recommendations for improved airfield project planning and execution.

Fort Knox Field Chapter December Meeting - Qualified Recycle Program

Fort Knox Recycling Center refined its mission in 2010 when it was made part of the Directorate of Public Works, Environmental Management Division and became the Qualified Recycle Program (QRP). The move supported the Fort Knox pollution prevention program and supported the installation’s environmental management sustainability program. The multi-faceted mission of the QRP is to protect the environment and conserve natural resources by maximizing the diversion of materials from the waste stream and increasing awareness of the benefits of recycling; save appropriate funds by greatly reducing the amount of solid waste being transported to local landfill; and generate non-appropriated fund revenue through the sale of recyclable materials and to return that revenue to the community to use in pollution prevention programs.

Daniel Pearman, Chief of the Fort Knox QRP Branch, gave an update on how the installation responds on a daily basis to the Department of Defense mandate for diverting construction demolition debris and all other solid waste from disposal at the 1 December 2016 Fort Knox Field Chapter Meeting at the Saber and Quill Conference Center at Fort Knox.
